1. Please describe this person's greatest strengths as a Instructional Assistant.

- Chill, gives helpful insight showing his experience/knowledge, teaches without giving away the answer
- He had very clear and easy understand explanations. Was also helpful in hosting bootcamps.
- He has a very strong sense of character and because of that you could see that he is very self-assured and has amazing social skills and which makes people comfortable with him
- He has very neat solution sheets. For the first half of the quarter, I went to the Friday bootcamps, and he was good at explaining the solutions to the problems. At some point I stopped going to the bootcamps, not due any skill issues from Jean, but rather because I had to cram for my physics quizzes, which were later that day. However, later I would do the problems on my own, and the solution sheets for the Friday bootcamps problems were always very neat and easy to follow.
- He helps me to understand where to go in my work and quickly addresses any misconceptions I have.
- He is very calm and collected when answering questions. He is also very good at explaining concepts in a way that students can understand. Overall, Gorby is easy to approach for questions about the material.
- He was clear, relational, and was simple with explanations
- Helpful in giving insight to weather the current approach to a problem was correct, gives hints in right direction
- i did the oral assessment with him and he was very encouraging
- Patient.
- reassuring, personable, and funny; good at teaching.

- Taking the time to help students individually and explaining in a way that is easy to understand.
- Very helpful and provides the right information, very patient when helping
- Willing to explain a problems concept entirely and thoroughly, no matter what stage the student knows the material. Exceptionally kind.
